Rabbits, Turtles, Pease
Try Los Angeles
That Is the Place

By Arthur Brisbane

HODGE, Calif., Oct. 3.—This is written at Hodge, Calif.; on the so-called Mojave Desert, sixty miles back from the Pacific Ocean, two thousand feet above it. This writer has bought five thousand acres here, but does not advise you to invest. Some day every foot of this desert will be green, but it is not a place for quick money making, no place for the man that cannot bring plenty of money with him.

Will Mays, movie moderator and king, has asked this writer to get him a thousand acres or so here to keep and forget. Paul Shoup, of the Southern Pacific, with millions of acres in this region, will be asked to oblige. Some day Hodge will be pleasantly reminded of its purchase, but it is not for the little buyer or the man anxious to make a living now without working "too hard."

It is a land of great delight. After you have brought in your well, started your forty horse-power electric pump throwing into your reservoir 100,000 gallons of beautiful water every hour, to see vigorous young alfalfa protected in its youth by a cover crop of tall grass, covering areas that were barren desert and sagebrush one year ago, makes it worth while to invest money that you probably never will recover.

There ought to be ten thousand little houses for retired school teachers, firemen, policemen, clergymen and other deserving people scattered over 50,000 acres about here, surrounded by a million chickens and turkeys. Riding your horse in any direction over these soft desert flats and hills, you must be reminded of your mankind. Jack rabbits as fast and almost as big as small deer bound ahead of you over the sagebrush and cactus, and lurking coyotes start in pursuit and thank you perhaps for rousing the rabbits. Desert turtles, as big as a milk pail, draw in their heavy heads as you pass (coyotes turn them over, tear off the under shell, eat the meat; ants clean the bones). The shells make good bird houses.

This is a place for men with money or real workers. At the Los Angeles Fair recently, the blue ribbon for the best alfalfa grown anywhere was won by the Hodge brothers, for whom this place is named. When the war ended the two brothers took land here as homesteaders, and under the soldiers land act they cleared their land, dug their wells, built a 500,000-gallon reservoir, installed their pumps, all with their own hands, sleeping at first under a lean-to, working eight hours a day for other men to live, then working additional hours on their own account. And they set the blue ribbon for alfalfa alfalfa in the country. This is a good place for men willing to work the land, but they are not numerous.

The wonderful place to see is sixty miles west of here—Los Angeles. There is the place to go, taking money with you for investment. Harassing the Colorado River, now a certainty, thanks to Hiram Johnson, Herbert Hoover and President Coolidge, will double Los Angeles. Please Turn to Page 10, Column 1.

DRINK CIGARETTE FIRE FOUND

FIRE KILLS 5; DUE TO CIGARETTE

A lighted cigarette stub caused the tragic Hudson street, South End, fire which took the lives of five persons, in the opinion of State Fire Inspector Thomas A. Thompson, made public today.

In a report to his immediate superior, Deputy Fire Marshal Timothy G. Murphy, Inspector Thompson discounted the fire theory, and declared the fire apparently was caused by a cigarette carelessly tossed into a closet on the first floor.

He added that he believed responsibility would be difficult to place as the closet was used by several families.

Peter Hannity, his wife and their three children were dead in their third floor apartment when flames fought their way into the place. The entire family died of suffocation.

'Pitching to Decide Series'—Flatley

Pittsburgh, Oct. 3.—Pitching, or hitting which is another way of saying the same thing, will decide this World Series between Yanks and Pirates, which starts in this excited village a couple of days hence.

The two clubs, analysis shows, are about on a par in the matter of pitching and club batting.

The Yankees as a team had a defensive average of .861, while the Pirates' mark was .862.

The Pirates had a slight edge in the matter of team hitting, too. They wound up with the very respectable .307.

Percentage, .307, while the enemy were right next to that, with .306.

No two teams could be closer in being told, what we mean. It is certain that both teams will play up to normal form in the series.

COUPLE ESCAPE DEATH AS TRAIN CRASHES AUTO

Salmon, Oct. 3.—Mr. and Mrs. George Mead of Salmon street, Salmon, escaped death by inches when their automobile was struck by an express train at Salmon depot early today.

Mead even escaped injury, excepting a shaking up, but Mrs. Mead suffered cuts on her right leg, which were treated at the Salmon hospital.

According to railroad officials, the crossing tender was out in the road with his warning sign when the Mead automobile approached the crossing.

A train from Boston was standing in the depot, but an express from Gloucester, bound for Boston, was last roaring out of the yards and approaching the crossing.

The Mead auto scuttled over the crossing, the engine threw up his air brakes and his iron wheels, pending arrival of the medical examiner.

The bank also notified Lieut. James G. Bruter of the Brookline fire department, who went to the reservoir and identified the body as that of his brother.

He said the bank clerk had been in ill health for some time.

Bruter, the clerk, was born in Halifax, N. S., and lived with his wife at the Beacon street address.

POPE GREETS LEVINE; GETS PAPAL BLESSING

Rome, Oct. 3 (A.P.)—Pope Pius today received Charles A. Levine in special audience in the small throne room of the Vatican.

The Pontiff, dressed in white, seemed surprised at the small stature of Levine, who was accompanied only by M. Wrangel, a nephew of the Russian General Baron Wrangel, who is serving as his social secretary.

The Pope said that he was greatly pleased to greet the transatlantic flier and then blessed Levine, his family and all future flights.

Levine, upon entering the Pontiff's presence, bent his knee and kissed the Pope's hand.

PHONE TIPS TELLS HOW TO FIND IT

While Brookline police today were receiving a telephone call to look in the Chestnut Hill Reservoir for the body of Thomas J. Bruter, bank clerk, of Beacon street, Coolidge Corner, two workmen were pulling the body to the reservoir bank near the dam, No. 1.

The police telephone call came from the bank where Bruter was employed, and was made as a result of a telephone message the bank received from a man who said he was Bruter.

This message was to the effect that his body would be found within a short time in the reservoir, and the bank immediately relayed it.

Meanwhile, James Lyons and Martin Johnson, employees of the Metropolitan District Commission making a round of the reservoir, sighted the body floating a few feet out from the bank. They pulled it up close so that it would not be lost, and then notified the Speedway station of the Metropolitan Park Police in Brookline.

Captain F. W. Garrett and Patrolman John A. Molan, Jr., and William G. Kinney went to the reservoir and took the body from the water, pending arrival of the medical examiner.

The bank also notified Lieut. James G. Bruter of the Brookline fire department, who went to the reservoir and identified the body as that of his brother.

He said the bank clerk had been in ill health for some time.

Bruter, the clerk, was born in Halifax, N. S., and lived with his wife at the Beacon street address.

PARIS RAPS U. S. TARIFF

Washington, Oct. 3 (A.P.)—The conciliatory character of the latest French note in the exchange with the United States on the tariff question became more apparent today when the State Department made public the communication.

The gist of the note lies in its reference to Section 312 of the American tariff act, which authorizes the President to change statutory duties to meet lower costs of production abroad.

"The French government wishes to emphasize," the note states, "that it is not a question of engaging in tariff bargaining; it is only a question, in exchange for the particularly favorable regime of the French minimum tariff, of obtaining for France the most favorable regime of the American tariff."

The note adds that the French government "must make dependent the grant to America of the most favored regime which France grants to other countries," upon the carrying out of the modification proposed by that country in the original French refusal of most favored nation treaty negotiations and the counter proposal for negotiations on the basis of tariff reciprocity.

The latest note admits the Washington government cannot by law reverse in customs rate.

In Heroic Rescue of Flock

As Fire Wipes Out Five Lives

AIDED HUSBAND
Mrs. Eugene Packham passed her four children from their smoke-filled bedroom on the fourth floor at No. 103 Hudson street, South End, to her husband on an adjoining roof.

RESCUER AND HIS SON
Eugene Packham saved five lives after he swung out from one of his rear windows, managed to reach a ventilating pipe and then swung himself to an adjoining roof. In this perilous position he pulled to safety his four children and then his wife.

THREE OTHER LITTLE SURVIVORS
These Packham kiddies and their heroic parents were in a state of collapse when firemen finally rescued them from the roof of the adjoining building. They suffered severe pains as they escaped from their furnace-like home just as the flames were eating their way toward the roof from the apartment where five had lost their lives.

HOW RESCUE WAS EFFECTED
This photo shows how the Packham family escaped death when they reached the adjoining roof.

MADE GUARDIAN OF CITY'S BOYS BY FALLING IN LOVE

The Turn of the Road & To Success or Disgrace

SPRINGFIELD'S "BIG BROTHER" EXPLAINS TO NEWSIE
Patrolman James O'Connell, of Springfield, paints a word picture for David Cowen, 13-year-old newsboy, as they talk over the crime situation and golden road to success. O'Connell is the "Big Brother" of the Springfield children. And Jimmie is delighted with his new assignment for he is fond of children. His fiancée, who is about to be graduated as a nurse, also is pleased for she likes children as well as Jimmie. He is unusually well adapted to his new duties because for three Summers he worked as an instructor in the playgrounds of Springfield. Already he has made a hit with the youngsters and one group of boys received his first talk with cheers.

SPRINGFIELD'S "BIG BROTHER" REAL MENTOR

By FRANCES L. BAIRD

Springfield, Oct. 3.—Jimmie O'Connell, twenty-seven-year-old police officer assigned by Chief William J. Quilty to be "big brother" to the youth of the city, is engaged to be married—and thereby hangs this tale.

Because Jimmie is in love he was the best bet out of three hundred officers for this important job, the first of the kind in the police annals of the United States and the first demonstration of Judge Marvin Kassan's suggestion from the Chicago bench.

"All the world loves a lover," and who is more tender and compassionate toward the weak and the wayward than an Irish boy in love? Could may be blind, but a Springfield policeman dare not be, especially the Chief.

Jimmie did not know that his superior officer had even noticed him, although he had been on the police force for three years prior to his appointment to the regular force when the first vacancy occurred last Jan.

He colors to the roots of his fair hair when his sweetheart is mentioned or he is praised. Of course these facts are in Page 4, Column 3.

DYING AFTER REVERE STREET BATTLE

A man, believed from letters found in his pockets to be Leon Dion, twenty-seven, of Bristol street, is dying at the Massachusetts General Hospital from a fractured skull which the police say he received as a result of a fight in which two other men participated in Revere early today.

The police say he received the injuries in a fight in which two other men participated in Revere early today.

Dion was found bleeding from the head beside the International Highway near Broadway. The police were called there by a woman resident, who said three men had stopped her automobile and were fighting.

Leon arrived the police found the other men. They rushed Dion to the hospital, where his name was placed on the danger list.

The woman, in her excitement, failed to get the registration number of the automobile.

The Sussex police were unable to find anyone by the name of Dion living at the Bristol street address.

SEAL BRINGS NO JOY FOR THIS HUB GIRL

Three-year-old Norma Solomon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin D. Solomon of No. 1274 Commonwealth avenue, Auburndale, today was a victim of "passenger's delight" when she greeted her mother after Mrs. Solomon debarked from the Farness liner Nova Scotia.

The cause of her disappointment in a stuffed baby white seal, called in the provinces a Newfoundland white coat. It was bought by the fond mother as a plaything for her daughter. Proving a money on the boat and being greatly adored by passengers caused Mrs. Solomon to change her mind, she said on landing, so that now the naively rosy in the Solomon harbor with instructions to Norma "mustn't touch."

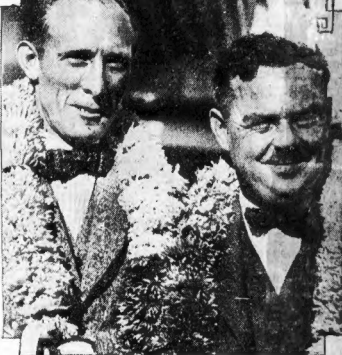

Mrs. Solomon was one of a number of passengers landing here from Liverpool, St. John's, N. F., and Halifax, N. S.

Dr. W. E. Gye, said by fellow passengers to be an authority on ever, was among those to disembark. He is said to be carrying specimens to Harvard University.

Among the other passengers were Mr. and Mrs. Chas. George Jr., housemothers, coming to the city for their wedding trip. George is a native of Ottawa and his bride formerly lived in Halifax. The returning vacationists numbered Miss Florence Lee of Pittsford, Medford, among the list.

NATIONAL SIN OF U. S. 'CRAZE FOR SPORTS'

Pawtucket, R. I., Oct. 3.—America's national sin is its craze for sports.

America's sporting craze is the indirect cause of most of our financial crimes, and we squander more money on baseball, horse racing, prize fights and theatres than on food and family sufferers.

These are declarations by the Rev. Arthur J. Watson of St. Luke's Episcopal Church, known internationally as the "fighting man of the cloth," who predicts for America a tragic downfall similar to that of ancient Rome—unless a huge religious revival occurs here.

He is fifty-two years old, and with subscriptions totalling $100,000, has led through his own efforts, he built a novel church famous in this city and original because of its appearance new to structures of worship.

TAKE PART IN GAMES

In the basement are bowling alleys, spaces for amateur boxing, a real stage with footlights for theatricals, storerooms, closets for hats, balls and other athletic paraphernalia—all for the use of members.

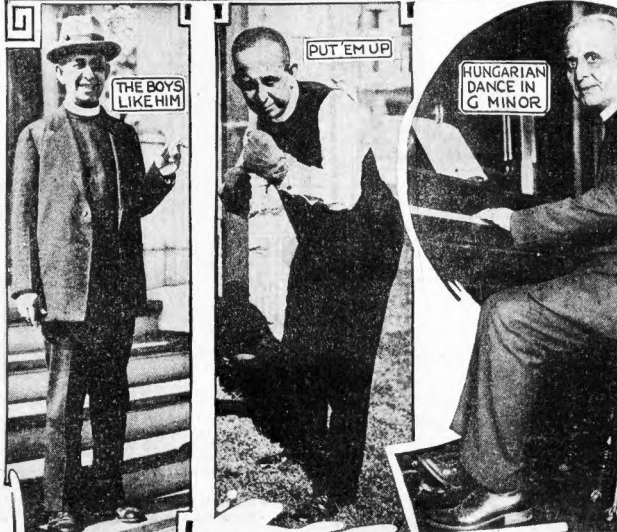

And he frequently joins in many of the games, often emerging victor in tennis, golf or boxing. He also enjoys a cigarette or cigar when in the mood.

"Athletics is desirable as long as it builds character, but America's sporting craze is the indirect cause of most of our financial crimes," he declared in a sermon.

"The Israelites worshipped a calf of gold. The Americans bow down before a calf of flesh. The boxing glove may yet be woven into our flag. We squander more money on baseball, horse racing, prize fights and theatres than we do on food and family sufferers are communal."

The major part of our sports totally unite those who take part in them for the active work of life. The sporting tendency is, indeed, our national sin. The chief cause of our financial crimes is the

COMEDY PAIR BRING MANY LAUGHS AT THE OLYMPIA.

These merry film revivals, Charlie
Murray and George Sidney are better

each other uproariously on the screens of the Olympia and Pennsylvania. In each case, the two stars, when they are doing "The Life of Riley" in at least loosely connected scenes.

Both gentlemen are comedians of ability and long standing in the flickering films. Murray is a graduate of Mack Sennett's school of the flourishing slapstick. Sidney is an old stage favorite.

"The Life of Riley" Sidney appears as a small town police chief. Murray is the same widow, an ex-chief. And the two fellows, when they might continue admiring her for a couple of minutes without making much headway except that the circus comes to town and a policeman from one of the balmy-boxes shines up to the lady to grant her fortune.

Then the comedy begins to explode. In the end Sidney wins the balmy-box and Sidney now is bound with her—as might have been expected.

BETTY ALDEN'S SOCIETY COMMENT

Hunt Breakfasts and Dinners Take Prominent Places on Current Social Calendar

JUST AS CERTAINLY AS THE autumn comes round hunt breakfasts and dinners have prominent place in the social scheme as arranged for the Spring sets. Now it remains for Mr. and Mrs. Austin Potter of Wilkesley to vary procedure with a hunt tea. On Saturday next, after the Dedham Hunt's spirited cross-country run of many miles, they gather at the Dedham Country and Polo Club to sip a cheery cup of tea as guests of the Potters. Mrs. Potter was born a Forbes, which means that by right of family inheritance and proclivities she belongs to the very heart of the set that dotes on hunting and maintains large country estates alongside its favorite hunting country, miles and miles of rolling lands furnishing all sorts of cover and ever so many hazards to try the mettle of horses and riders alike.

MORNING, NOON AND AFTERNOON is the Dedham set in the saddle, and all ages and all sizes ride. The Dedham hunt has an annual bid for fame. It is one of the few recognized hunts in the country having a woman master of fox hounds. Mrs. I. Tucker Burr, Jr., holds that honor and is proving most adept. Like Mrs. Potter, Mrs. Burr (Evelyn Thayer), as M. F. H. of the "Dedham Harriers," she is riding to new glories.

ALL THROUGH THE AUTUMN ON TUESDAYS AND THURSDAYS VALIANT SOULS OF THE Norfolk set gather for hunts almost before the sun has shown himself over the tree tops. Saturday there's a reversal and the late afternoon is devoted to dashing across country after the baying hounds. The coming holiday is eventful for Norfolk. They hunt from the elder mill in Sharnburys and then gather at Morgeswater for a hunt breakfast as guests of the Norfolk master of fox hounds, Henry G. Vaughn.

MANY GET BACK YOUNG APPETITE

Quick lunches, usually cold, rushed down to the "dinner hour" will not be over before you can do a little playing. It is the best way to run your stomach, and you suffer from indigestion, heartburn, bloating, nervousness, headaches, and, worst of all, you get thin, pale and weak.

If you must eat that way, always keep a package of Paine's Diapensin handy so you can chew one of the pleasant-tasting tablets after your meal. It keeps the food sweet to your stomach and digests it.

Follow the experience of thousands who again have a young appetite. All druggists recommend and guarantee Paine's Diapensin to relieve indigestion and sweeten the stomach in 5 minutes.

COOLOGE AND KING HOBNOB BY RADIO

Washington, Oct. 3 (A.P.)—King Albert of Belgium and President Coolidge exchanged greetings by direct radio telegraph communication today in the inauguration of service between Belgium and the United States. Their messages were followed by a similar interchange between Secretary Kellogg and the Belgian Minister of Telegraphs, Anseele.

"The opening of the Ruysselede wireless station," King Albert said, "affords Belgium another easy way of long-distance communication which cannot fail to enhance our relations with the United States. I am glad of this opportunity to give the President of the great American Republic the assurances of my sentiments of friendship and to send to his companion a cordial and warm message from the Belgian people."

Replying, President Coolidge said: "Your Majesty's gracious message on the inauguration of the new radio-telegraph direct service between the United States and Belgium is but another proof of the constantly increasing ties of understanding and of communication which link this country with Belgium. In expressing my personal good wishes to your Majesty, I desire to add the affectionate greetings of the people of the United States to those of Belgium."

Polygamy Found No Cure for U. S. Ills

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 3 (U.N.B.)—Radical proposals for changing family life were dissected by a famous biologist, Herbert S. Jennings, professor of zoology at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, at the conference on family life in America today and "found wanting."

Such proposals as a polygamous system of marriage, "temporary families" and the care of children by the State instead of by their parents were considered by Professor Jennings.

"The monogamous family, with lifelong union of mates, appears to be the final term in a long evolutionary series," he said. "The polygamous system is sometimes defended on the ground that in it the stronger become parents of the next generation, the weaker being excluded, and that this results in a steady raising of the level of population."

"Temporary families we find in the lives of many birds and animals. Individuals become mates for a longer or shorter period, separating as they please. This system, unless supplemented, as by social care of the offspring, ignores the long tradition of dependence of the children."

CIVIC LEADERS AT FUNERAL OF MRS. O'LEARY

Funeral services for Mrs. Gertrude Frances Hayes O'Leary of Brookline, president of the Massachusetts Democratic Women's Club, were held today with a solemn high requiem at St. Mary's of the Assumption Church, Brookline.

The church was crowded with relatives and friends, many of the latter being prominent city officials, as well as State and national dignitaries.

Delegations were present from many of the women's organizations with which Mrs. O'Leary was active. The mass was celebrated by Rev. William McCarthy, assisted by Rev. Abner R. Finn, deacon, and Rev. John H. Lyons, sub-deacon.

The active pallbearers included Joseph E. Palmer, Atsuo V. Chappell, J. Thompson Farrell, Frank Murray, Edward Flynn and William V. Doyle.

The honorary pallbearers were Senator David I. Walsh, ex-Mayor James M. Curley, ex-Mayor John P. Fitzgerald, General Charles H. Cole, Mayor Edward W. Quinn of Cambridge, Judge Edward A. Conahan, Judge Thomas P. Dowd, Judge

Thomas P. Riley of Malden, Registrar of Deeds W. T. A. Fitzgerald, Registrar of Probate Arthur T. Sullivan, former Congressman Michael Plutan, Francis A. Campbell, clerk of the Superior Civil Court; District Attorney William Foley, ex-Senator James H. Doyle, William G. O'Hara of the Boston School Committee; George E. Curran, Senator James J. Mahoney, Representative Owen Gallagher, James J. Cronin, clerk of the Supreme Court, and Charles E. McGinnis, chairman of the Democratic State Committee.

A delegation of 100 members of the Massachusetts Democratic Women's Committee, headed by Mary Gallagher, vice-president, occupied seats in the church.

Following the services the funeral moved to New Calvary Cemetery, where a short committal service was read by Rev. John H. Lyons of Abington.

SHANSI ARMY REDS BEATEN IN TAKES KALGAN TRADES UNIONS

Peking, Oct. 3 (A.P.)—The important city of Kalgan, largest commercial center north of Peking, has been captured from the Northeners by Shanai Province troops, official foreign quarters were advised today.

The Manchurian troops, which have been holding the line against the Shansi troops, were reported to be receding today towards Sun-hwai, twenty miles southeast of Kalgan on the road from Kalgan to Peking.

The Shansi Province troops, who have been developing a movement which may become a serious threat to Peking itself, started in pursuit

MARTHA LEE COOKING SCHOOL PLANS

Four Days of Lectures

MARTHA LEE, household economist of the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser, announces that plans are complete for the opening of the Martha Lee Cooking School to be offered the housekeepers of the city for four days in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Statler.

Martha Lee expressed complete satisfaction at the splendid cooperation the merchants of Greater Boston have given her in making the kitchen and auditorium ready for the school. The kitchen has been equipped with the latest labor and time-saving devices.

There is a big, handsome electrical refrigerator in which she will make cream, demonstrate as a part of the cooking program of the school. Its principle of freezing by electricity will also be explained to the many women who want to know the what and why of the equipment which goes into their kitchen. Various time-saving devices will be a part of

There will be cooking demonstrations at each day's session as well as a lecture by Mrs. Edna Crabtree, nationally-known cooking authority, with free distribution of the printed recipes after the class.

Mrs. Crabtree knows the problems of keeping a house running smoothly, and her experience as well as training in the scientific side of housekeeping.

Her lectures will be given every day of the Martha Lee Cooking School, beginning next Tuesday at 2:30 o'clock and continuing through Friday afternoon, and will incorporate not only the scientific theories and practical advice learned from her years of housekeeping, but a great many new ideas on kitchen equipment and modern cooking.

New tools and new thoughts help bring interest to housework, and by studying the interesting principles which women show when they attend conventions, conferences and the business club luncheons.

Martha Lee will introduce Mrs. Crabtree at the beginning of the classes. She will tell some of the interesting facts about Mrs. Crabtree's previous work and experience with clubs and schools throughout the United States. There will be exhibits of new food products and many kinds of household equipment which may be examined after the lecture.

The doors will be opened at 1:30 o'clock and the lecture will begin promptly at 2:30. Martha Lee urges Boston housekeepers to plan their week's work so that they can be free to come to the school and not have to rush away to get their family dinner or shop before the demonstrations are finished.

The four days of interesting cooking and lecture demonstrations are free to everybody who is interested in housemaking. A number of women's clubs and societies, and a number of the women's church organizations are coming tomorrow for the opening.

Both labor saving utensils and devices as well as new methods of cooking will be featured at the cooking school next week. The kitchen installed in Hotel Statler ballroom will contain a new electrical refrigerator, a new model of gas range, and all kinds of small devices which save time and work in preparing a

Macaroni Is a Builder

ONE of the pleasantest prescriptions in the world to take is macaroni or spaghetti that is included in a large proportion of "eating for health" diets prescribed by leading physicians.

They tell us that these, together with egg noodles, are among the most nourishing foods we can eat. The reason is in the ingredients.

Farina, the foundation of these pastas, is the heart of the wheat and bulid flesh, tissue, red blood and bone. For building up young bodies, for giving strength and vigor to the whole family it has no equal.

Used in the recipes we have worked out in the Martha Lee Kitchen macaroni and spaghetti may be prepared in an almost endless number of appetizing ways that will appeal to the dainty eater, the invalid, or the heartiest appetite.

Today I want you to try one of the simpler macaroni recipes—macaroni as gratin. It is always popular, but often indifferently thrown together. Macaroni as gratin may be prepared in an almost endless number of appetizing ways that will appeal to the dainty eater, the invalid, or the heartiest appetite.

Timely Menu for These Fall Days

Here is a timely menu for the Fall days:

Meat Loaf
Creamed Peas
Devilled Tomatoes
Green Grapes

To make the devilled tomatoes, peel and cut four tomatoes in halves. Sprinkle with salt and saute in butter. Pour over them a sauce made by working four tbsp. butter to creamy consistency and then adding 1/2 cup powdered sugar, 1 tsp. dry mustard, 1/4 tsp. salt, a few grains cayenne, 1 slightly beaten egg, the yolk of 1 hard boiled egg, rubbed to a paste, and 1/2 cup vinegar. Cook in double boiler until the mixture thickens.

How to make a perfect cup of Tea

Use India Tea or a blend containing India Tea, and make it in the correct way. Use an earthenware teapot, previously warmed. Put into it one teaspoonful of India Tea for each person. Be sure the water is poured into the teapot the moment it boils. Allow to stand for 5 minutes to infuse. Put a little milk or cream into each cup before serving the tea. It greatly improves the flavor! Then add sugar to taste. India Tea also makes the best iced Tea.

SLADE'S Mustard

Expert Cook Gives Tip

AN expert cook, who has learned "a thing or two" from long experience in cake making for a successful tea room, will tell you that the richest, smoothest, creamiest, easiest icing in the world are made with sweetened condensed milk. And here is the reason:

Condensed milk is a delicious blend of full cream country milk from which most of the water has been removed and finest sugar. Because it is so rich and thick and smooth and creamy, icings made from it require no cooking, no laborious testing—and are always sure to be perfect in consistency and flavor. This recipe will prove it:

CHOCOLATE ICING—Two squares of unsweetened chocolate, 1/2 cup sweetened condensed milk, melt the chocolate over hot water; add the condensed milk slowly; stir smooth, and continue stirring over hot water about one minute until it thickens. Spread on the cake while the cake is hot, or after the cake is cool.

Dainty Dessert for School Lunch Box

Here's a dainty dessert for the school lunch box, or the children's supper:

Apple Sauce Turnovers—Prepare flaky puff pastry, roll one-fourth inch thick and cut in four-inch squares. On each place a scant tbsp. of sliced apple sauce, which should be very thick. Moisten edges of the pastry fold into triangular shape, brush with milk and bake about twenty minutes in a hot oven, 375 deg. F.

A MEDICAL FOOD AT EIGHT CENTS A POUND

THE man who ate the first tomato was a real hero. Tomatoes were formerly called "love apples," and were grown simply because they were pretty. It was commonly supposed that eating them caused cancer.

Of course, the tomato has graced our tables for a good many years, now, in one form and another with out harm to the consumers. Recent discovery of the new vitamin E in tomatoes has again placed the spotlight on this popular food.

Vitamin E assists the red blood cells in absorbing iron from foods.

This iron is necessary in the blood because it helps to carry the oxygen from the lungs to every part of the body.

Tomatoes are also known to be rich in vitamins A, B and C. Owing to the acid nature of tomatoes the canned product retains its vitamins and health properties excellently. Tomatoes contain more vitamin per pound than any other canned food and more than any food except fresh milk.

At the present time, they retail at an average of less than eight cents per pound of contents. No other food that is comparable in medicinal and dietetic value can be bought for eight cents a pound.

For Tomato Surprise

WASH and wipe six medium sized tomatoes dry. Remove a thin slice from the top of each and remove the pulp. Sprinkle the inside of the tomatoes with salt, invert and chill. Meanwhile, press the pulp through a ricer or sieve.

To it add one cupful pared, diced cucumbers, one cupful canned or fresh cooked peas, one and one-half cupfuls diced, cooked chicken, one-third cupful finely chopped pickles, one-third cupful salad dressing. Mix carefully and fill the tomato shells with the same.

Serve on lettuce, garnished with sliced dressing. Any diced, cooked meat may be substituted for the chicken. Serves six people.

VIRGINIA HAM WITH PINEAPPLE

FIRST boil the ham, then skin and bake in a thick crust of brown sugar and English walnut meats set round with cloves. Baste with grape vinegar until the surface has become crisp and glistening brown. Serve with sweet potatoes which have been baked, mashed and put back into their shells to reheat. Garnish the platter with slices of Hawaiian pineapple, set deep in jelly made from their own rich syrup.

$2 Dinner for Six

HERE is a tempting, well-balanced dinner for six persons—from broth to dessert—made in all cases out of a two-dollar bill:

Clear Broth
Salted Crackers
Meat Loaf With Pineapple
Baked Potatoes Peas
Whole Wheat Bread Butter
Lettuce Salad
Marshmallow Sponge
Dessert—Cakes

Two cans of clear broth cost 10 cents each. A 10-cent box of salted crackers will suffice for soup and the meat loaf.

MEAT LOAF WITH PINEAPPLE requires 1 lb. chopped pork, 1 lb. chopped beef, costing 60 cents; 1/2 cup crushed pineapple, which costs 15 cents at sales and can also be used for the dessert; three cups rolled cracker crumbs; 1 egg; at 4 cents; 1 tsp. salt and 1 tsp. pepper. Mix thoroughly meat, drained pineapple and rolled cracker crumbs.

Break in the egg. Work in salt and pepper and pack into a bread pan. Bake 45 minutes. Potatoes for baking cost 6 cents, a can of peas 21 cents, a loaf of whole wheat bread 10 cents, and lettuce for salad costs 10 cents.

MARSHMALLOW SPONGE requires 12 marshmallows costing 6 cents; 1/2 cup of crushed pineapple for 15 cents. Cut marshmallows in quarters and place in deep earthen dish. Cover with pineapple and place in ice-box until marshmallows are softened. Serve with sponge cake.

Enough coffee for four persons, at 40 cents a pound, is about 4 cents. These ingredients total $1.97, leaving 3 cents to cover the cost of French dressing for the salad.

Saving the Pennies

A PENNY saved is a penny earned—and one of the best places to apply this rule is in the use of the gas stove.

To get the best results from your stove, the burners should always be kept clean. Where a gas hot-water heater is used, the heavy volume of flame causes rapid collection of the products of combustion.

With a whisk broom or brush this grayish substance should be kept brushed away from the coils, leaving them free and clean, and if the burner becomes plugged, it too may be raised up and removed, and the openings cleared with the wire.

Daily care of gas stove and other gas apparatus consists in keeping

How to Prepare the Maple Biscuit

An innovation in the biscuit world is the Maple Biscuit. Make an ordinary biscuit dough, roll it very thin, and spread it first with butter and then with maple sugar. Then cut the dough into squares, rolling up and pinching the ends to keep the sugar from running out in the baking. Place the rolls in a dripping pan and bake in a hot oven just as you would any other biscuit.

A festive addition to that of chopped nut meats with the maple sauce.

Here is a truly remarkable opportunity for thorough instruction in cookery and in the science of home economics. In the Grand Ballroom of the Hotel Statler, under ideal conditions, Mrs. Edna Riggs Crabtree, culinary expert, will lecture to the housewives of Boston and New England and to students of the domestic arts who seek first hand demonstration of the principles of modern household management. Budgeting, marketing, kitchen equipment, meal planning and new recipes are some of the subjects that will be discussed. The lecturer will demonstrate new delicious dishes at each session and printed copies of the recipes from which they were made will be distributed to our guests. There will be ample opportunity for personal conferences on dietetics and similar problems.

You are urged to come. Your ticket appears on the Martha Lee Page of today's Boston Evening American in the form of a coupon.

flavor makes the CAKE

THE proof of the pudding is in the eating. That is an old, old proverb. But it's just as true to-day as it was in 1847, when Burnett's introduced to the women of America those famous flavoring extracts whose use in the best families has since become traditional.

You know, as your grandmother knew, that every drop of Burnett's is Nature's flavor, pure, concentrated. Imitation's extracts, made from cheap substitutes, have no more business in a desert than questionable eggs. It's a matter of taste.

One bottle of extract looks much like another. It's the contents that count. Imitation flavors never deceive the discriminating taste. For the children's sake, use Burnett's Extracts—they are absolutely pure. And for the grownups' sake, because of their superior flavor, always use Burnett's Flavoring Extracts.

JURY PROCEEDING OFFICER'S ACTS

The Grand Jury investigation into the activities of Motorcycle Officer Henry E. Pelletier, of Cambridge, promoted by District Attorney Robert T. Bassett a short time ago, got under way today.

Among the first witnesses were Capt. Patrick J. Hurley, chief inspector of Cambridge police; James D'Alaisio and a young woman. D'Alaisio was arrested on the night of Sept. 7 by Pelletier at the Fresh Pond parkway, charged with parking without lights. Pelletier also charged D'Alaisio had been drinking.

When the case went on trial before Judge Joseph E. Donovan, Capt. Hurley appeared against Pelletier, bringing out the fact that the officer was out of his own territory when he made the arrest. Pelletier's defense was that he had a moving commission to seek for stolen automobiles. Pelletier denied that he had told D'Alaisio to "smoke" a certain Cambridge police official.

values within a year. And with abundant, cheap power, Los Angeles, now the sixth manufacturing city in the country, with six thousand industries, will rise rapidly to supremacy. Able business men, Julius Rosenwald, of Sears Roebuck; Firestone, the tire man; the Goodyear and other big concerns, including the powerful Henry Ford, are building huge Los Angeles plants. Labor is abundant, rents and living are cheap, and there is no coal problem because you do not need coal. The man establishing a plant here is wise on his own account, far-sighted and a benefactor to labor.

H. G. Wells is useful because he is not afraid to let his imagination work and write down what it tells him. The average man is afraid to say anything he cannot prove, by someone dead 200 or 1,000 years. Wells says another war, more terrible than any, is on the horizon. "The enemy are in plain now as they were in 1907." It is to be a war from the air, gas suffocating whole cities, instead of bullets killing a few thousands; wholesale instead of retail murder.

Wells confesses that he was surprised when "that profession of ruthlessness, insensitive mediocrity, the military profession" allowed the great war to happen. Fortunately, there is a chance that Wells may be surprised again by an almost indefinite postponement of the big gas war. What everybody expects usually does not happen. The world's greatest power, high finance, is better organized than ever, and knows what it did not know in 1907 "that war does not pay, ruins even the winners, and would lead next time to government confiscation of capital." "The kings ruled, they did not have war if they did not want war. With finance ruling and not wanting war, the deadly gas war may be postponed indefinitely.

Meanwhile, the little private war, developed by the big war and bootlegging, barter and constantly improves its methods. Fix bands hold up the Los Angeles Merchants National Bank.

ANCIENTS FEED IN ST. JOHN

St. John, N. B., Oct. 3 (A.P.)—Led by Commander Lionel G. H. Parker, 225 members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Massachusetts were guests of the city today on their 40th Fall field day.

The visitors were met on their arrival by Mayor W. W. White, Premier Honorable J. B. M. Baxter, Colonel Commandant W. B. Anderson and other officials. A guard of honor commanded by Lieutenant Colonel George Keefe of the 1st John Fusiliers was provided for the party.

Thousands lined the streets for the parade from the depot to the hotel and the visitors, in their picturesque uniforms, were cheered all along the route.

Today the city is giving them a clam bake at Crystal Beach on the St. John River.

The Life and Loves of Isadora Duncan

Her Women Stopped by Isadora

(Fred Tote, of the Boston Evening American staff, was an intimate friend of Isadora Duncan for seventeen years and for seven years he directed her theatrical appearances in this country and Europe. Here is the sixteenth installment of his splendid story of her life and loves.)

THE LIFE AND LOVES OF ISADORA DUNCAN

By FRED TOTE

Chapter 18

JUST before Isadora found the heart of the French people through her series of performances at the Gaite Lyrique, she was invited to London to dance in the salon of Lady Arthur Paget, an American woman holding a high place in court. The American was the wife of a British general.

The affair at which Isadora was invited to dance was in the nature of a festival in honor of the son of the founder of a great American industry and a man of colossal wealth. He had married an Australian woman, had become a British subject, and was at this time equerry to the Queen of England, a post of considerable social prestige. He had two sons who were in the army. Isadora's dancing and her personality captivated the multi-millionaire, and the pair promptly shook off the bonds of Paris and London, and departed for a sentimental journey up the Nile on the millennium dahabiyah. They did not stop on the palatial yacht under the Egyptian moon, but sailed on to the foot of the French Alps. There the two dreamed of creating the beauty spot of the world. They would buy up all the ugly peasant huts and the old chateaux and the sea, and rebuild them in quaint style. They would clothe the peasants in fifteenth-century costume, and all aspects of life would be kept outside the range of visibility.

It was in the course of this romance that Isadora made her voyage to the United States. She arrived in New York in August, 1910, where she found that Frohman had told her for appearances at the Criterion Theatre.

That August was extremely hot. New Yorkers had not yet acquired the twelve-month-in-the-year theatre-going habit, and the season was a dismal financial failure.

A brief tour to Boston and other large cities followed, but only after the theatre had been shuttered by such a terrific amount of sea-sickness as was common upon the dancing of the dancer who appeared on the open stage in bare limbs. They did not stay long in those days.

In view of the reported acclimating of the dance, women and girls were away from performances. Those times when women's reputations might be shattered by such a willful matter as being seen at a theatre, Isadora's performance, dancing at a restaurant that had the reputation of being "wild," to use the vernacular of the period.

These same women and girls soon came to comprise three-quarters of Isadora's audience, but only after the months of searing attack by the dancer, aimed at the strict conventions that bound women's attire, intellect no less acutely than had the iron-banded corsets and her body.

Isadora created a sensation in Boston when she called upon the young girls of the city to buy almost no clothes and go and dance.

Several letters, alleged to have been written by Isadora in which she professed love for Hox and in one of which she threatened to "kidnap" her unless she "loved him deeply in return," were turned over to police for the attention of the authorities.

The girl had been shot three times and wire had been wrapped around her neck. Three other young men who were questioned in connection with the case were released early today.

"When I left Barnstable Saturday night I did not expect to see Rose," Taro was quoted as having said. "I met her near the bridge in Woodbury about 10:30 o'clock and she went to the car with me without any argument. No one else was with her at the time."

"We drove along for a while when we got into an argument and I left her up. From there I drove on to Barnstable and then on the back road to Southwell. Near Southwell I stopped the car and pulled my revolver from under the seat and shot her."

CLOSED STREET JAMS

Admits Slaying Teacher When Spurned

Woodbury, N. J., Oct. 3 (A.)

STUNTS FOR FRESHMEN

STREET REPAIRS CAUSE HUB TRAFFIC SNARLS

Traffic jams at half a dozen important downtown street intersections resulted today when city authorities closed Baylston street, between Tremont and Charles streets, to permit workmen to repave this extremely bumpy section of roadway.

Armed at the congestion result, other points, police hurried to the front with plans to drivers to change their routes entering and leaving the downtown area.

Traffic will be closed for ten days. For the present, delivery wagons will be allowed to enter but all other vehicles are barred.

Automobiles congest Park square, the junction of South and Tremont streets, the Stuart-Washington street intersection, and even the School and Tremont streets corner in jams difficult to traverse by this closing.

Drivers entering downtown Boston from Dorchester and the South Shore are urged to enter by way of Albany street, while those from the Seaport and Cambridge areas asked by the police to swing in from the north, over the Cambridge draw bridge, for example.

An alternative way, far from Brookline, Newton, Jamaica Plain and other places in that direction is to use the Fenway, Newland avenue, then via Massachusetts street and West Broadway to the Shawmut avenue and Albany street.

QUONER or later, quite certainly, we should expect to discover Wilson looking into the constitution of the Jefferson Society. From the time when he was a lad of twelve or thirteen in Augusta, organizing the I. O. O. F. and writing out the rules of order, we find him making or remaking constitutions—at Davidson, at Princeton for the little debating club he himself organized, as well as for the Whig Society—and now, having been elected president of the Jefferson Society, the first thing he did was to give notice that he would "at some future time introduce a resolution to appoint a committee for revising our constitution."

We could find him later doing the same thing at Johns Hopkins and at Wesleyan, and it is not hard to see what the constitutional constitution of the state of New Jersey, and, finally, at Paris, we shall discover him working out a covenant or constitution under which the nations of the earth may dwell together in harmony.

During all his years of preparation, Wilson's interest in current politics, however quiet, was intense. An appointment was received in 1910 and 1913 tant tant "collected student" and he was to step so far as to take part in the political arena, and not only in the arena and problems with a mastery which he dominates the assumed political leaders. There was in reality nothing surprising about it. Wilson had all his life long been a student of national political affairs, and not only in America but in England, and to a lesser degree, in Continental Europe.

Crowds Expected at the Martha Lee Cooking School

THE final steps were taken today in completing all arrangements for Boston's big venture of a Martha Lee Cooking School for the housekeepers of the city.

Martha Lee, well known cooking and home economics expert, has made her final selections from the stores and shops of Boston. The last stirring spoon has been selected and, from the big electrical refrigerator to the smallest sauce pan, the kitchen is ready for the demonstration.

Here is tomorrow's program:

Lecture subject "Mid Year Business"

Martha Lee plans for the week will take care of a wide range of subjects of interest to housekeepers and from the interest the announcement of the school has created everywhere in New England, it is not only going to be a large one, filling the stater ballroom, but the women are going to pay Martha Lee and her assistant, Mrs. Crabtree, with questions and after the lecture.

They hope you will do that very thing. They are anxious that every woman who comes to the school should see every device in the kitchen. They want every woman who will occupy a seat in the stater ballroom to hear every word of every lecture and then to take in the question and answer forum which follows the lectures.

The Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser have planned a program of music to open each day of the school, and the demonstrations will be no interesting. Every woman will want to be present at every session. The always interesting table service of home and home economics, as well as new phases of cooking, and a discussion of labor and time saving devices. One session will be of especial interest to the women who are over-weight and those who are under-weight. Mrs. Crabtree also has some good news for the women who have finicky eaters at their family table and for those who have to cater to a member of the family who insist on following new food fads.

Martha Lee needs no introduction to New England housewives. Mrs. Crabtree is not only a famous lecturer on subjects of interest to every housekeeper, but she has had years of experience in keeping her own home and she will soon alone to her audience the many short cuts and new ideas worked out in her own kitchen as well as the latest theories on cooking and housework which the professional housewife and the homemaker should know.

Both are strong believers in the home budget. They say that to budgeting is the secret of a successful run home. She also believes that every home should be run like a business, and that time for the various duties but that common sense should be applied to any such schedule, and when an emergency comes along the housekeeper ought to be able to adjust her schedule to the happenings and conveniences of the day.

Mrs. Crabtree also has an assistant who is a capable right hand woman. To her assistant, Mrs. Crabtree, she owes a great deal of credit for the success of the school, for she helps in the demonstrations and to be an excellent cook.

The program for tomorrow will be:

Reed Requests Letters

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D.

YOU are asked to write me a letter. For several reasons. In the first place I have been writing you a letter every weekday until you have had more than a bouquet of them. It is not about time to me to hear from you? Most of my letters begin with the word "you." That is because, in writing them, I always think of the individual reader. I like to feel that each one of my communications is a letter, direct, personal, intimate, to some one reader - "you" - to whom I am thus holding out, if not a helping, at least a guiding hand. I try to see the woman and her situation, her needs and hopes, health and welfare, and to write to her as an individual, not as a member of a class.

As my daily practice through the New England housewives. Mrs. Crabtree is not only a famous lecturer on subjects of interest to every housekeeper, but she has had years of experience in keeping her own home and she will soon alone to her audience the many short cuts and new ideas worked out in her own kitchen as well as the latest theories on cooking and housework which the professional housewife and the homemaker should know.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. CORNELIUS BECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BECKMAN:

It is proper for the bride's parents to invite the groom's parents to the groom's relatives' and a BRIDE-TO-BE.

UNDoubtedly the groom's parents will be invited to the wedding, and people invited to the wedding are not invited to the wedding. The groom's parents should be invited to the wedding, but if they are invited to the wedding, they should be invited to the wedding. The groom's parents should be invited to the wedding, but if they are invited to the wedding, they should be invited to the wedding.

LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON (Authorized by Mr. Edison)

During the Boer War in South Africa Edison's invention of the motion picture camera and projector made it possible to do things impossible on the regular stage. Double exposure made the cannon-striken will's crime haunt him everywhere he turned. Every detail of his act could be shown at the same time he was shown fleeing from the scene.

A RECORD birthday card, measuring 6 ft. by 4 ft., was sent by governors of the States to President Coolidge on his 59th birthday. A candle for each State was included, and when each was removed, they revealed the signatures of the governors.

Rhyming Optimist

By ALAN MITCHELL

SILK and satin and lace train, made that ever true dancing feet 'til the stars grow cold, these are her heart's desire. When of the sun on a bluebird's wings, joy of the swallows' flight, light and lovely and shining things, these are her heart's desire. Eyes that glow when her step draws near, arms that are opened wide, like that morn'g, 'I love you, dear! this is she satisfied.

Totting at morning, at noon, at eve, sailing through songs and days, smiling at part last another grievance, this is the part she plays. Comforting, chattering, leading on ever to higher goals, visioning hope after hope seems gone, joyful in life's small doings, laughing with children and healing all little heartache, griefs and aches, bringing the light where no sunbeam falls, this is the world she makes.

This is a waste of taxpayers' money. Why not use the funds to test the mentality of a boy who pays $40 for a seat four books from the register?

Ordinary newspaper bubbles, says the L. S. Bureau of Standards, when filled with explosive gases, are easily photographed, and can be used to good advantage in research work. And yet how many of us waste our time in blowing bubbles? It is just this careless attitude that makes this the most extravagant nation on earth. Stop wasting your bubbles. Send them to the L. S. Bureau of Standards.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN'S PLATFORM FOR BOSTON AND NEW ENGLAND

For BOSTON: 1—Clean streets.
2—Better pay for honest public service.
3—An airport SECOND TO NONE.
4—Extension of a MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM to compare with any in the land; in order that Boston, properly supplied with first-class hotels, may be the premier convention city of the U. S. A.

For NEW ENGLAND: 1—Weld the six States into a unit through the activities of the New England Council, thus creating a community consciousness.
2—Promote intercourse with Central and South America, encouraging New Englanders to "turn to the sea" again.

3—Keeping everlastingly at the job of telling the rest of the country all about our unique advantages as Summer and Winter Playground of the Nation.
4—Foster the prosperity of our industries through (1) greater efficiency in production and (2) the use of modern methods in merchandising.
5—Promote in every way such natural resources as forests, water powers and fisheries.
6—Assist New England agriculture to better marketing methods.

Tour the Stores by Bus

Leaving Your Car and Your Worries Outside the Shopping District

The stage name of one of the nags that took part in the "boss race" which featured "The County Fair," a rural drama in which Neil Burgess toured the country successfully for many years as the Widow Bedott, was "Cold Molasses."

No named, of course, because AT THAT TIME there was nothing so slow as "cold molasses in January."

At that time, almost any "Cold Molasses" could run to Newton and back while a private automobile was covering the ten or a dozen blocks which embrace Boston's shopping districts.

In the hope of materially lessening the congestion which has prevailed in the shopping area there was inaugurated today a FREE motorbus service by three coaches, running on ten-minute schedule between the Motor Mart and Bowdoin Square garages.

The buses will be in service from 8 o'clock in the morning until 8 o'clock in the evening. Coming down town from the Motor Mart, they will stop at Stuart and Washington Streets, Washington and Bedford, Washington and Avon, Washington and Milk, and Washington and State Streets.

Bound south and west from Bowdoin Square they will come to a stand at Tremont Street and Beethoven Square, at Tremont and Boston, Tremont and Winter, Tremont opposite West, Tremont and Boylston Streets and in Park Square.

Twenty-six representative firms have made this service possible, acting through the Retail Trade Board of the Chamber of Commerce. It will appeal especially to women drivers who, because of increasing congestion and other hazards, have abandoned the use of their own cars for shopping tours. Driving to either of the garages named, the ladies hereafter will ride from shop to shop free of worry and responsibility.

Another newly established service which emphasizes the growing importance of the bus is that which was begun on Saturday last from Park Square to New York City, by way of the "shore line."

In this case the innovator is the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, acting through a subsidiary. The coaches on this Boston-New York run are of most modern type, with elevated compartments at the rear in which 17 passengers may relax with a clear view of the countryside.

In the compartment below there are 12 more seats. The trip between the cities will be made in 11½ hours. Each of these new services represents a positive advance in means of transportation. The free bus for shoppers should keep a considerable number of cars out of the downtown area, besides being a great convenience to women generally. The Boston-New York venture, under railroad auspices, is chiefly important because bus drivers in railroad employment must qualify under rules patterned after those of the standard railroads.

The Proper Spirit

Lawrence's

Reviewing the parade with which the people of Lawrence brought their Spirit of Lawrence Week to a close the president of the New England Council saw many evidences of the desire of an important community to co-operate with those who direct the affairs of its industries.

The parade followed the four-days' industrial educational exhibition in the State Armory, where Pacific Mills, American Woolen Company, Kumbier Mills and scores of other organizations worked hand-in-hand with Kiwanis, Rotary and Lions to the end that LAWRENCE might know what LAWRENCE makes.

President Lawrence has more than his New England Council interest in the city on the picket, which received its name from one of his own Lawrences. Abbott Lawrence, first president of the Essex Company, was one of the nine children of "Deacon" Lawrence of Groton. When, with others, he became interested in the local water rights, in 1643, the "city" had a population of 150.

The spirit of Lawrence is a CO-OPERATIVE spirit. Here is a cheerful community of 100,000 workers, the very center of American woolen manufactures, which stoutly refuses to be pessimistic about "textiles."

"Come on," these earnest workers challenge the leaders of industry, "show your leadership!"

Applying Logic

Magistrate Could Do Nothing for the Man Asking Wife's Arrest for Non-Support

Well, it has come at last, just as all the anti-anti-frags said it would and as all the pessimists predicted. Equal rights have been carried to the last degree, as well as equal responsibilities.

A man in Long Island City approached Magistrate Daly and asked for a warrant for his wife's arrest—for non-support. He stated that his wife had contributed nothing to his support for quite some time.

It was a pathetic plea of a poor, downtrodden husband, and the magistrate felt the pathos of the situation deeply. But, being restrained by certain laws, a magistrate in some cases can do nothing. With heart bowed down the judge told this man, a husky citizen and well dressed, that the law, perhaps unfortunately, provided that the husband must support the wife.

This was quite a surprise to one and all and the gentleman will be going to work and earn his own living. Those things will happen. It is a fierce country. The women have no charity.

Big Bam Sets Precedent

HAPPINESS RARELY
VISIBLE TO MANY

By DR. FRANK CRANE

HAPPINESS is rarely visible to the multitude, says a shrewd observer; it lies hidden in odd corners and quiet places.

Happiness is a shy thing. Grief is blatant and advertising. If a boy cuts his finger he howls, proclaiming his woe. It is eating pie he sits still and says nothing.

If you ask a man how he is, he searches himself to find a pain to report. If he has nothing but happiness, he hates to mention it, and says, "Oh, not half bad."

We conceal happiness as a vice.

We are rather suspicious of it, and if we feel particularly well, or have exceptional good luck, we knock on wood.

The fact is that happiness does not come from the big events of life, but is made up of innumerable little things. Ordinary every-day happiness is composed of shoes that fit, stomach that digests, purse that does not flatten, a little appreciation, and a bit of this, that, and the other, too trifling to mention.

The big things, such as someone giving you a million dollars, are not only rare, but they do not satisfy when you have the million.

We are so cantankerous by nature that we are usually able to spell happiness only by holding it before the mirror and reading backwards. Leonardo da Vinci used to write that way; that may be why he could paint "The Joyous One" with so enigmatical a smile.

For if you seek to analyze contentment you go at it negatively. To feel well means you do not have headache, toothache nor toothache, you have no dyspepsia, catarrh, gout, malaria, hives, nausea, boils, cancer, grippe, rhinitis, otitis, appendicitis nor any other ills. And to determine your joy you must reckon by checking off and eliminating the factors of possible pain. Answer—happy if no pain discoverable. So elusive is joy!

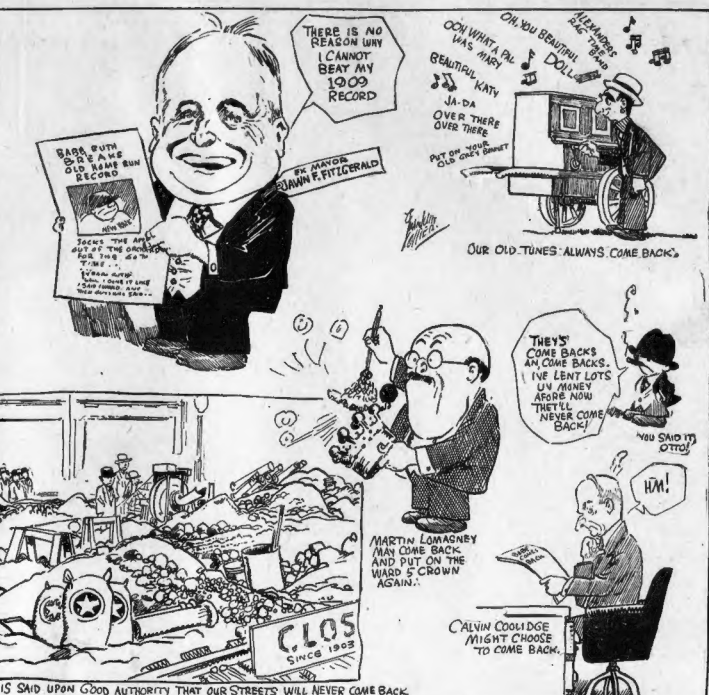

Some day try reversing this process. Note all the pleasurable things. For instance, a good sleep, a delightful snooze in bed after you ought to get up, a delicious bath, the invigorating caress of cold water, a good breakfast, with somebody you love visible across the coffee-cups, a half-hour's diversion with the newspaper, the flash of nature's loveliness outdoors as you go to work, interesting faces on the street car, pleasures of your business, pleasant relations with your fellow-workers, meeting old friends and new faces, the good story someone tells you, and so on—you'll fill your notebook—and you can get your disappointments and grievances into three lines.

Happiness, they say, is scant in this wicked world and hard to find.

One way to find it is to look for it.

BOSTON DAY-B-DAY

WE went to church in the middle of the week. Out in Brookline to the beautiful old First Parish we went. This Unitarian Congregational Church at Walnut and Warren streets is old. The parish started in 1717 and the original town hall of Brookline is now connected with the church building. Where town meetings were once held it is now only known as Pierce Hall.

Dancing is now permitted in Pierce Hall. In pre-revolutionary times dancing was an official sin.

Brookline was originally called "Muddy River." It is still quiet there at Walnut and Walnut streets. The parsonage near the church is a large, rambling house, comfortable and attractive.

Fire a few years ago destroyed much of the original structure. The church of 1717 still ticks as accurately as ever. Costs of arms, leaded windows, Gothic arches, bronze tablets, the hand hewn beams and hand wrought iron work all combine to give an old world flavor.

Overhead flew what might be the air mail. A contrast to the furniture, Bible desk, and books of 1717 below in the many-voiced building. Inside it was dead, quiet. Conquest and twilight are perpetual here. Outside it was warm, bright and the occasional voice of a flapper calling to its owner was heard. A few feet away in the Ebenezer Herdlin. Everything seemed peaceful and pleasant.

The church building is imposing and interesting. Built out of native rock, it seems to have grown from the hillside on which it rests. Archways, broken lines, cleverly placed, vari-colored stones, heavy wooden doors, give it a distinctive appearance.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

GIVEN'S going to quit her job. It can stop thinking that I have been personally insulted because people are too much in a hurry to cook for me. I can throw myself into the Big Profession and become a part of it. Instead of staying on the outside and being pined for by its upstart, I can stop trying to make environments fit me and I can begin to fit myself to fit environments. And instead of expecting other people to supply me with peace and happiness and contentment, I can begin to build up these things for myself, in my own spirit. Hitherto I haven't had these things, not because life was cheating me, but because I was poisoning myself with resentment and self-pity. If I clean that poison out of my system, I'll have healthy appetites and happiness where I start!"

Gwen had brains enough to succeed—but she'll never do so until she says to herself: "I can't change the world. It is too busy and full of people to stop and adjust itself to me."

Given will never find the right environment. There "ain't no such animal." For the environment that might be right for 899 other people will never be right for Gwen. Her mind is all wrong. That's her trouble.

Ever since she crashed into the waiting world Gwen has been expecting Big Business to stop and pay attention to her. She's quite willing to work—but someone must supply exactly the right kind of work and the ideal working conditions. She looks at other people and sees them functioning successfully and she feels that they have been favored while she has been neglected. An attitude of envy and resentment has been growing in her—she's sorry for herself and mad at the world which she thinks is treating her unfairly.
